FREE
classroom training course for Historic Preservation students and interns

Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act requires federal agencies to consider the effects of their undertakings on historic properties. This requirement generates many career opportunities for graduates in historic preservation, architectural history, architecture, landscape architecture, archaeology, ethnography, planning, and other related studies.

The NEW Section 106 Essentials is a one-day course for anyone interested in an overview of the Section 106 review process. This special offering for historic preservation students and interns will be taught by experienced ACHP staff and will help prepare participants for career opportunities in Section 106 compliance.

Register ASAP. Capacity is limited.

FREE classroom training course for Historic Preservation students and interns

This course focuses on applying the vocabulary and principles of the Section 106 review process in real-world scenarios. Small group exercises and knowledge checks will also help participants in the course to:

- Define common terms in Section 106 reviews,
- Apply the four-step Section 106 review process to example federal undertakings,
- Practice identifying consulting parties and planning to involve the public,
- Identify strategies to avoid adverse effects, and
- Discover the ways to conclude Section 106 reviews.

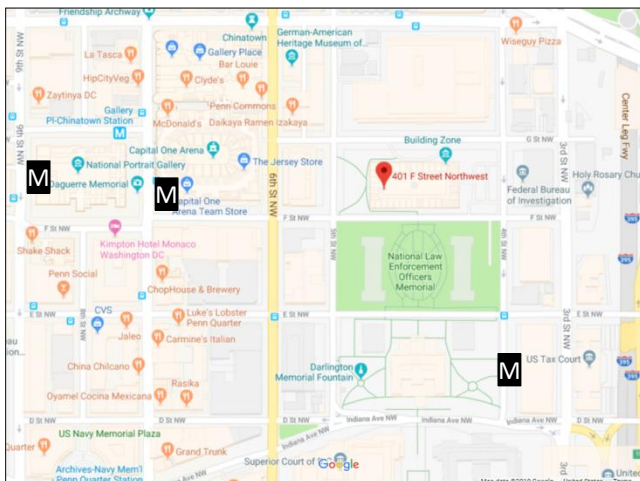

Participants will receive a certificate of completion, suitable for resume-building.

Register ASAP. Capacity is limited.
